

Fund Overview

The Fund aims to deliver positive returns over the medium to long term across a range of market conditions, with around half to two thirds the volatility of equity markets. The fund utilises a defined returns approach to equities for more predictable performance in stable markets. In less stable markets, a variety of tail hedge strategies are deployed in the alternatives sleeve to contain the downside from steep declines in risk assets. We apply our Dynamic Duration strategy in fixed income markets to maximise diversification potential across asset classes. The fund uses derivatives where these provide the most efficient way to achieve these objectives.

Asset Allocation

Estimated Monthly Attribution & Outlook of the Fund's Sleeves

Sleeve	Monthly Attribution	Monthly Commentary	Outlook
Equity	-0.32%	The fund's equity allocation, which offers exposure to global equity indices in a defensive manner, was down over the month. By region, the largest negative impact came from Europe (including the UK), whilst US exposures also contributed negatively.	Looking ahead, the estimated intrinsic value (assuming flat markets) and overall delta of the equity sleeve, at fund level, is 7.8% and 37.6%, respectively.*
Fixed Income	-0.43%	The fixed income allocation uses the Dynamic Duration strategy, and the signals were unchanged over the month, following the release of UK and US inflation data in mid-August. With US 10yr yields up, US rates performance was down, and US longer-dated inflation expectations were slightly lower leading to a negative impact from the US CPI position. In the UK, where 10yr yields were up slightly, UK rates performance was down, whilst the 10yr UK RPI position was flat.	The Dynamic Duration signal for the US is ² / ₃ long rates and ¹ / ₃ long inflation. In the UK, where the rules indicate the Bank of England still has more work to do to suppress inflation, the strategy is half long rates and half long inflation.
Alternatives	0.02%	The fund's alternatives allocation, which offers investors exposure to crash protection, was up very slightly over the month. The allocation tends to perform well when markets become stressed unexpectedly. Volatility and its impact on the fund's tail-risk strategies was subdued, as was the performance from the allocation's relative value positions.	The VIX Index, which is a measure of short-term equity volatility, remains low, and closed the month in its 2 nd percentile of daily observations over the past 3 years. This seemingly low VIX makes tail hedge protection affordable at strikes approximately 10% below the current market. This sets the fund up well to benefit from sudden fragility in risk assets, especially as central banks attempt a soft landing for economies in potentially turbulent conditions.

Calculations do not consider credit spread movements of the issuers of the securities. The mark to market of the securities and therefore the NAV of the Fund will decrease as credit spreads widen and vice versa if spreads narrow. The price of shares and income from them can go down as well as up and past performance does not predict future returns. Investors may not get back the full amount originally invested. The level and basis of tax is subject to change and will depend on individual circumstances. There is no guarantee that the Fund will achieve its objective. The Fund invests in derivatives for investment purposes, for efficient portfolio management and/ or to protect against exchange risks. Derivatives are highly sensitive to changes in the value of the asset from which their value is derived. A small movement in the value of the underlying asset can cause a large movement in the value of the derivative. This can increase the sizes of losses and gains, causing the value of a derivative investment to fluctuate and the Fund could lose more than the amount invested.

The Fund can invest in high quality government and corporate bonds. All bonds will be rated at least BBB- (Investment Grade) at outset. If any of the bonds the Fund owns suffer credit events the performance of the Fund could be adversely affected.
